

DON'T KIT-NAP KITTENS

Mom will likely return. Please don't intervene!

When we find a litter of kittens, our good-hearted instincts tell us to jump in and help. Thankfully, human intervention is typically not required. In fact, the best thing you can do is leave the kittens alone. Mom will likely return shortly, and it's critical that the kittens remain in her care as she offers the best chance for survival.

Found Kittens? STOP! Leave kittens alone.

DID MOM COME BACK?

YES

Hooray! Let mom care for them until they're 8 weeks old.

Then make sure both mom and kittens are spayed/neutered. If the cats aren't tame or you have any questions regarding their care, please call our main phone line at:

NO

You'd make a great foster parent! If mom has vanished for more than 24 hours, the kittens are likely orphans.

During kitten season, shelters are overrun and don't have adequate resources for proper care. We have kitten care supplies and will help you through the process!
